POLITICAL NOIES.

The New-Hampshire Democrats appear to be cumping the Legislature of tout State as a sort of private ensitiation whose sole parasse is to gratify their parti-san wish s. Compilal is of their conduct are heard from all quarters, and even their own party journal

Senator Lewis V. Bogy, the gentleman who has the honor to represent the same State as Carl Schurz, has returned to St. Londs, and The Times of that city thus tries to needs atm rate fame: "We predict for him in the near future, when the services of patriotic Speaking of the election of Congressmen in this State next Fall, The along Express says the Repubbean Conventions" mass wood out certain members who have shown themselves citaer ounoxious of inefficient," and adds that there is no necessity of renominating any "who were to favor of the Salary Grab, who wanted to cover up the District Government swindles, or who are not sound on the question of the currency." That would be a good plank for all of the parties to put in their platforus. No salary graphers, theit-defenders, or infla-tion advocate ough, ever to be returned to Congress.

Congressman H. O. Pratt of the IVth Iowa District, is having a hard fight in his attempt to get a renomination with his back pay in his pocket. He was elected two years ago with a large majority, but it is thought now that it he gets the Republican nomination he cannot be elected. The Rendolican journals of his elistrict are bitterly opposed to him, talking in this way "Mr. Prate's most successful move has been in pocket "Mr. Prair's most successful move has been in pocket-ding the increase of satary, wails voting in favor of the repeal of the satary gratiew. This of itself is enough to consign him forever to political oblivion, and we must mistake the temper of the people of this schloet if they do not manifest at the polis their disapprobation of this section."

It is pretty difficult to tell from the Iowa newspapers just what was the character and importance of the Anti-Monopoly Convention walch met at Der Moines last week. The Des Moines Lader, organ of the Auti-Monopoly party, says that "not since the palmy days of the Republican party or the grand old gala days of Democracy has there assembled in Iowa a body which comprised so much intelligence and enthusiasm. unsurpassed by any ever presented to the people of the State. The prospects are also good, it says, but there is The Republican fournais are of a d f ferent opinion. The Burlington Hawk-Eye says: "The entire proceedings had the cut and dried look, and the ringmaster appearance which is a poor indication of real reform, and the shilly-shallying character of the real reform, and the shilly-shallying character of the resolutions, wordy and meaning ess, shows clearly that they were the work of the processional politician, and not the work inspired by a true desire only to bring about reform. The outlook for reform has not been improved by the meeting of Aud-Monops, but the outlook for the Republican party grows brigater and brighter."

Our idea is that so far as the next Presidency is concerned the President has no more thought of it than he has of the millennium; that his sole aim and amount on just now has to do the work that comes to him to do to the best of his abelity, faithfully and honestly, and for the good of the whole people.—[Washington Expedition (Rep.)] The first appointment of Shepherd, then

The shortcomings of John A. The Democracy have every reason to feel confident of success, for the Independent Republicans of the State cannot fail to respond to the quickening appeal which will come forth from the State Convention.—[Albany Argus (Dem.)

We do not believe that Mr. Hoar's public life will close with the end of this Congress. We remember that Massachusetts has generally found for her worthest sons such public service as she needed and they were competent to perform with credit to themselves and advantage to the Commonwealth, and though at present Mr. Hoar things it no longer his duty to withdraw his attention from his private and professional interests, we have no doubt that he will jet be called into conspicuous public service by a summons so imperative that he he cannot conscientiously decline it.—[Worcester Spy (Kep.)

RENEWED LIFE IN WALLST. IN ADVANCE IN STOCKS-RUMORS OF THE STREET-RELATIVE ADVANTAGES OF THE NATIONAL AND STATE BANKING SYSTEMS.

The extraordinary buoyancy of the stock market, which began with the passage of the Finance bill and continued through last week, was renewed yesterday morning on a vigorous scale. From the opening of the Exchange there was a strong "bull" feeling, and under its influence prices ran up from 1 to 31 per cent. While Lake Shore appeared to be the favorite, the rest of the list was by no means neglected. When the general dealers thought that they had realized a fair margin of profit there was a pressure to sell, and prices reacted from 1 to 2 per cent. The advance was attributed to various causes, and numerous rumors of new nations were circulated. One rumor was to the effect that Jay Gould had turned about and be he was still "short," and that Daniel Drew, having emerged from his retirement, had clasped hands with his old-time enemy, Commodore Vanderbilt, and they had combined for the purpose of wreaking vengeance upon their successful competitor. Of course it was im-possible to verify any of these stories, and they are sim-oly given as the current gossip of the street. Bankers have been considering a statement which has auggested an abandonment of the National system of banking and a return to the State system of banking. While many now see that there are advantages under the State system which the National banks do not enjoy. yet they believe that the difficulties in the way of exchange would neutralize the benefits to be gained. Others think that the National system is the best, and prefer to make no change. The specific announcement that some of the banks intend to abandon their circula tion is regarded as premature, however. The principal objection is the supervision or espionage of the Government. The following are the views of representative banks on both sides of the question:

ment. The following are the views of representative banks on both sides of the question:

At the Bank of the State of New-York no proposal to change has been made to the directors. In regard to the 25 per cent, of which complaint was made in some quarters, no institution doing a large business could object to such a requirement, as any well-regulated bank would of itself maintaineas large a reserve. Some banks could not afford it, and some of the old city banks thought 10 per cent sufficient to insure stability, and had declined circulation at the expense of the 25 per cent deposit required. So far as circulation was concerned there was little profit in it.

The Leather Manufacturers' Bank has not given the subject of change any consideration in its board of directors. Individual opinion is thoroughly in favor of the National system, the advantages of which are considered to be much greater than those afforded by the State law. Then it is thought in this bank that the security of stockholders and depositors is assured by the right which the Government has to inspect the accounts of the bank at any time without notice, and objection can scarcely be made to the exercise of that right by banks conducted in a careful manner.

In the St. Nicholas Bank there is an anti-National sentiment, and a readiness is expressed on the part of some of the officers to change at once if the directors so desire. Shodility would be secured by organization under the laws of the State law was deemed altogother the most favorable for the interests of the bank.

The Felton Bank, which was understood to have taken some action in the matter, remains stationary, though the subject of a change has been considered. The interference of the Government is here complained of.

It is understood in Wall-st. that the redemption of National bank circulation will not take place in this city, but in Washington, under the supervision of Treasurer Spinner.

A NOVEL TEMPERANCE SCHEME.

N ASYLUM FOR THE TREATMENT OF PERSONS SUF FERING FROM NERVOUS DISEASES INDUCED BY INTEMPERANCE PLANNED BY THE GRAND LODGE

OF GOOD SAMARITANS. The evil effects of intemperance having been brought promineutly before the notice of a number of clergymen in this city, and the difficulty of eradicating amid so many difficulties the greedy desire for alcoholic stimulants, after once the passion has been excited, has induced them, in connection with the Grand Lodge of Good Samaritans, to take active measures for the introduetion of a scheme for the cure of supposed confirmed inebriates. A few years ago a Home and School for reformation of the children of inebriate parents was stablished at Atturas, Rockland Co., N. J., and during the three years of its activity it "has done enough." according to the official report, "to make its existence a matter of gratitude in some hearts, and to show that it is entirely practical in its works." In connection with this movement, the Rev. Samuel J. Corneille of this city has proposed to the Grand Lodge of Good Samaritans a scheme for the foundation of an asylum for the treatment of persons suffering from nervous dis-cases induced by intemperance. The scheme met with great approval at the recent session of that body, the chief officer in his address stating that if the "Order can show the world how to educate the young not to form the taste for strong drink, and how to dissipate the habit when once formed, it will have accomplished two herculean labors, and will bring down upon it the grateful thanks of sorrowing and hopeless men throughout the land and the world." It is well known that many men, who are victims of intemperance, would willingly be cured of the evil, could they find a remedy without being subjected to the indignity of the public abriate asylums. The Good Samaritans having secured 165 acres of land at Alturas, have laid out the grounds in such a manner as to form a little village around the asylum. Neat little cottages will be erected for the accommodation of the families of the unfortunate men who are under treatment, and within th limits of the property no one will be allowed to sell, nate men who are under treatment, and within the limits of the property no one will be allowed to sell, give away, or even have in his possession any kind of intoxicating liquor. The pitients will be allowed to occupy the cottages with their families, provided that they will not go beyond the limits of the grounds attached to the Asyum, so as not to put themselves in the way of temptation.

The temperance societies have adopted various plans heretofore for the reformation of the drunkard, among which have been legislative prohibition, moral sunsion, religious influence, &c.; but those who have this particular matter in charke have decided that the only practical means that can be used for the eradication of inebriety is to remove the victim from the tempting influence of sicoholic liquors until the desire for stimulants has become quenched, and the very smell becomes to him disgusting. This pian has been tried in several instances and has worked very successfully, consequently the Grand Lodge of the Good Samaritans have resolved to give the scheme every assistance. All the officers who will have the matter in charge are willing to give their time and attention to the working of the institution "without fee or hope of rewars," and the patients will have to pay nothing more than the mere cost of their board, or, if their families occupy cottages in the vicinity, just such expenses as would be thereby incurred. Many of those who have entered upon this work have suffered from the evils of intemperance, and have been saved by similar treatment, and in the gratitude of their hearts are willing to do something for their fellow-creatures who are now afflicted as they once were. There are many who have a broader view than merely the prosent, and seek not only to reform the drunkard of the present day but to help educate the rising generation with a distaste for all enjoyments with which alcoholism is connected. The whole Order of the Good Samaritans is to be reorganized with the view of carrying out this plan of reforma

TAILORESSES ORGANIZING.

THE WOMEN ATTEMPTING TO ORGANIZE A PROTECT-IVE UNION-THEIR RELATIONS WITH THE CLOTH-ING TRADE.

A meeting was held in room No. 24 Cooper Union last night, to organize a protective association among the tailoresses of this city. Messrs. Rosencranz. Blissert, and Fortune were sent by the Journeymen Tailors' Union as a committee to organize the proposed society, but in consequence of the small attendance that purpose was postponed. Mr. Blissert addressed the tailor esses present, enlarging upon the advantages to be derived from a trade organization, and assuring them that the Tailors' Union had no selfish motives in endeavoring to form such an organization for them, but was influenced entirely; by the desire to protect them from the rapacity of employers. The real object of the Tailors' Union in fostering this new movement, as gathered from the statements of the committee is this: The tailoresses employed in the custom trade are not paid by the employers, but by the journeymen tailors, under whom they work in each shop. Their wages vary from $9 to $12 a week. A so-called bill of prices is sent from the Tailors' Union to each custom shop in the city. The prices on these bills vary according to the standing, location, and general character of the respective shops; but no tailor is allowed to work for less than the price which the Union has fixed for his shop, and the same rule applies to the tailoresses employed to work under the journeymen. A few clothing establishments—notably those of Messrs. Nicoli, Devlin, and Brooks—are now working on a different system. They hire their own tailorgages, and pay them themselves, and since the rule of the Tailors' Union fixing a certain rate of wages is thus avoided, the prices they pay are comparatively low, averaging only of or sta week. It is this lowering of prices which has led the Tallors' Union to attempt the formation of a union among the tailor-esses, similar to their own in requirements, which will arrest the downward tendency of prices by enabling the journey-men to control the whole trade. They are now doing their best to persuade all the tailor-esses employed by the firms named, and some others, to unite under their auspices in a demand for more wages, which of course means a strike. Notwithstanding their poor success last night they will soon make another attempt to organize the proposed Union. There are about 3.000 or 4.000 tailoresses employed in the custom trade in New-York, but the larger proportion of them are already paid the rate of wages fixed by the union. Those employed in the "ready-made" trade are entirely beyond the control of the Union. There are 1.500 Union tailors in the city, and 18.030 or 20.000 who belong to no organization. The latter, however, are principally women in ready-made clothing stores.

which will not be before several days. It is understood, however, that among the cases under consideration is that of the alleged grain frauds.

The chairman of the Classification Committee of the Cotton Exchange reminds cotton brokers that the National Cotton Convention has appointed a committee of experts to meet in New-York on Aug. 31 next for the purposs of establishing a uniform standard, to be called the standard of American classification. Brokers are, therefore, requested, in order to afford them facilities for their work, to reserve for their use a reasonable quantity of their samples.

Brooke, Third Infantry, commanding at Camp Supply Indian Territory, reports, under date of June 15, that a party who came in from the vicinity of the Adobe Walls, found and buried two bodies of two buffale hunters who had been killed by Indians. The bodies were horribly mutilated. The party was attacked when within two days' march of the post by a small party of Indians, who attempted, under cover of the attack, to run off their stock. They also report having seen a good many trails of small parties going north from the Canadian

Davidson, commanding at Fort Sill, Indian Territory, reports that on the night of June 10, a party of ten or fitteen In dians fired upon the sentinel at the mule corral of the post, but were driven off. Colonel Davidson, in conclusion, says:

MIDSUMMER HEAT.

THE HOTTEST DAY IN MANY YARS. NE HUNDRED AND TWO DEGREES IN THE . "HADE-THE HEAT RENDERED MORE OPPRESSIVE BY EX-TREME MOISTURE. The glaring sun of yesterday beat down on helpless city, and New-York steadily perspired from sunrise until midnight. The oldest inhabitants, gifted with memories at long range, could recall half a dozen such days, but the records of recent years were rad sacked in vain for a parallel. At 4 p. m. the highest point was reached, 1020, and the mercury slowly fell, though the change in the atmosphere was not apparent until three or four hours later. A thunder shower came om the north-west at sunset and excited hopes of relief, but, unfortunately, New-York did not lie in its line of march, for it wheeled and passed to the west.

The intense heat began with the day itself. At midnight of Sunday the thermometer stood at a point above that of many a midsummer noonday. The pavements were hardly cooled from the long and steady glare of a sun which had set five hours before. There was no air stirring except the irregular breath from the harbor, and that, poor as it was, could not reach the inner re cesses of the city where its invigorating influence was nost needed. At 3 a. m. the mercury was slowly but steadily creeping upward while the sun was approach ing the horizon. The few who were stirring predicted an uncomfortable day, but few fancied that it could be worse than the previous one. The thermometer registered 74° and three hours later the record was 76°. At 9 a. m. the thermometer stood at 80° in the vicinity of the Astor House add discouraging reports were coming in from other sections of the city. The heat rapidly increased during the next three hours and at midday there were no signs of relief. The west and north-west gave no promise of a shower and the brazen sky was only flecked by fleecy clouds. The thermometer stood at 91° and was steadily rising. The sun rose to the zenith and his arrows fell straight on the victims below A light breeze from the south-east had sprung up during the forenoon and was breathing the Battery. The wind at length shifted southward, and attained a speed of six and seven and even eight miles an bour. Then it veered to the south-west, and again back to the south-east, but none knew of its gambols except the mariners, whose servant it was. The hours etween 11:30 a. m. and 4:30 p. m. were the most terribi of the day, or of any day of this or any recent season. At 3:30 p. m. the thermometer at Hudnut's stood at 99°, and an hour later it reached 102°. So unusual an event quickly drew together a curious crowd, and hundreds During the seven years in which the record has been faithfully kept at the corner of Broadway and Anu-st no such chronicle as this appears. It should be stated, however, that the thermometer, though shaded, s much affected by the strong heat reflected from the glaring white marble building opposite, and that the tube presents a large surface to the atmosphere; also that it was surrounded nearly all the afternoon by a perspiring and shifting crowd of curious gazers. At o'clock it had fallen 99, and registered 939. Tue cause of this depression was the freshening of the breezes from the harbor, which began to reach tae city and to pene trate its narrow alleys.

Black clouds, too, were creeping above the western horizon, and others from behind were pushing them forward. At 6 p. m. the heavens in the north-west were hung with a black curtain, through whose folds occa-sionally flashed a gleam of light. The mustering of the distant thunder grew more and more distinct, and a hundred great drops of rain were scattered on the burn ing pavements. But that was all. The storm passed to westward, and then again southward and eastward forgetting New-York in its shower of blessings. The breeze, however, and the near approach of the storm brought some relief, and the evening was to some extent comfortable.

The reports from the New-York branch of the Signal Service Bureau, however, fall nearly 80 below the re-Service Bureau, however, fail nearly 8° below the records made elsewhere. These observations, however, were made from the summit of the Equitable Insurance building, more than 150 feet above the Broadway pivement. Here at 3 p. m. the thermometer stood at 93; but the greatest hight attained during the day. The winds throughout the day attained no greater velocity than nine miles. At the office of the Signal Service Bureau it was not considered the hotiest day of recent years. The temperature, as then measured, was not higher toan in the nottest days of other Summers. The occasion of the intense suffering every where was not the heat of the atmosphere but its peculiar condition. There was much moisture in the air from morning until inghtfall, and the evaporating power was very slight. The sensible temperature, that is, the temperature experienced by the body, was as high as 7°, against an extreme high of record service Bureau showed that the heat of the previous day was much greater in northern than in southern latitudes. In New-York the thermometer reached 84; while in Jacksonville, Fin., it went no higher than sie. It was 55° in Boston, and 55° in Portiand, but in Eistport, Me., the highest point reached was 59°, and the sammit of Mount Washingson was sweet by a wind the speed of which was 50 miles an hour, ords made elsewhere. Taese observations, however,

HEALTH OF THE CITY. day, the general health of the city is excellent. Dr. Vanderpoel told a TRIBUNE reporter yesterday that the port of New-York is more free from contagious diseases now than it has been for many years. Only half as many vessels have been quarantined this year as las many vessels have been quarantined this year as last year. There have so far been no dangerous cases of yellow fever brought by incoming vessels. Those ports from which this disease is usually spread abroad are this year remarkably free from it. About the only foreign ports in which there is much sickness are Ro Janeiro and Baim, but hitle is to be feared from vessels arriving from those ports on account of the great length of the voyage, which usually dissipates the disease before it can reach New-York. Bestless the rapid approach of the Sourh American Winter will soon remoer these sources of disease still less formidable. The improvements at the new Quarantine Station have all been completed, and the officers are ready to do more effective work than ever before; but the healthfulness of this season has kept the commerce of the port free from many vexatious interferences.

A TAME YACHT RACE.

THE ANNUAL REGATTA OF THE OCEANIC VACHT CLUB-THE BROOKLYN, EMILY P., KING, AND TOUGH THE WINNERS.

The annual regatta of the Oceanic Yacht Ciub was sailed yesterday. The regatta was open to all yachts belonging to any regularly organized club, and everal outside entries were made. Considerable interest was thus imparted to a race which otherwise would have been destitute of interesting features. The calm of the early morning threatened disappointment to the friends of the New-Jersey vachtmen, but the breeze which sprung up at midday freshened in the afternoon, and became to the smaller boats all they could carry. Of the yachts entered the first two classes carried jib and mainsall, and the third class were cat-rigged. A separate course was laid for each class, the largest boats sailing from the stakeboat off the Central Railroad dock in Jersey City, between Bedloe's and Ellis's Islands, to the Romer Shoal Light and return; the second class from the same point to Coney Island Buoy No. 16 and return; and the third class to and around Fort Lafayette. The list of entries comprised the fol-

The yachts were well away together, but the Brooklyn, the Emily P. and the Tough together, but the Brooklyn, the Emily P. and the Tough soon gained an advantage in their respective classes. The Little was unfortunate in getting off and was soon left several cables length assers. The breeze now came then from the south and the tide was the last of the obb. The yachts crept slowly for awhile and there was no material change in relative position. The breeze soon after freshened, the smaller yachts dashed onward, plunging their bowsprits in one wayes. The second class, in rounding the Coney Island buoy, met a large sea and took in the waves at every plunge. So slight was the shifting of position that the race was shorn of excitement, as the winners were known almost from the start.
